Mike Dillon, CEO of seepex

“Export Success is a Global Effort”

seepex, Inc., based on a 14 acre company-owned property in Enon, Ohio since 1996, started in Dayton in 1989. It is a wholly owned subsidiary of seepex GmbH in Bottrop Germany. seepex manufactures progressive cavity (industrial) pumps and is active on six continents. It has a long commitment to export activities and has expanded into various markets by establishing an active presence in those markets regarding personnel and capital investment. The facility in Enon is responsible for all marketing and sales activities in North and South America and employs approximately 80 persons in administrative, production and sales functions. seepex was awarded the Ohio "E" Award by the governor, in 2004 and 2008.

Mr. Dillon will provide an overview of the seepex global sales and manufacturing network and a brief overview of the company's accomplishments and developments. The presentation should make it readily apparent that in today's global environment, export cannot be looked upon as an adjunct to normal operations. Prioritization of markets is key to overall growth and the stability of the company. Preparation to enter markets can take several years and takes a serious commitment regarding personnel, training and capital investments. Moving too fast or having unrealistic expectations can lead to failures that not only affect the targeted export markets but established and continuing business in developed markets.
